

Living Green

What does Living Green mean to me? Living Green means recycling, keeping this earth clean, don't pollute the earth. But we all know this world is getting polluted everyday. Us Americans basically think this earth is a trashcan. There is a lot of trash on the ground everywhere I go. I think they should put trashcans on more streets. I don't know if anyone will use them, but it could help. There is a lot of oil that the US has. But we need it for gas and heating places and making things. What I'm trying to say most people aren't Living Green. So to me Living Green means don't pollute a lot, don't use a lot of water, and recycle the paper. Wasting trees isn't helping any, especially since we need trees for the air so we can breath.

How am I Living Green at home? I'm Living Green at home by recycling glass bottles, reusing paper, and also I don't take long showers. I do these things because I'm trying to help the world and also the water bill. Wasting a lot of water for nothing doesn't make any sense. But to all of this I really like recycling and saving things at home.

How am I Living Green at school? I'm Living Green at school by recycling cartridges; we reuse printing paper, and also use solar light power. We use these things to help the Earth. Plus, the school saves a lot of money on doing these things to help.

How can I help in the future? I can help in the future by not using as much oil, recycle paper every week, and also not littering on the ground. Most of those concepts are being done. Using a lot of oil and also throwing trash on the ground is being done everyday. But with me doing these things in the future it will help my environment and me.

Why it is important for everyone to live this way? It is important for everyone to live this way because it helps the environment. It helps the trees, the air and also the people. With all this pollution the air can cause people to act crazy. That's why we all should be working hard to help the world and its problem. LIVING GREEN SO GO GREENNNN!
